

FauxNews

FoxNews Service - National

Published Dec. 1, 2016

Santa shows contempt for big business.

Trump Bans Santa Claus from U.S.

Barrie Marchant | Daphne Higbee

In a not-so-stunning development, President Elect, Donald Trump denounced Santa Claus in a public rally on Thursday night. "Santa can go wherever he wants," Donald said, "But I'll tell you where he can't go: here." The President Elect went on to declare that as long as he is in charge, "no jolly fat man in a red suit" or his "stupid little slaves" will be allowed in the United States.

His comments were in answer to a question about his recent tweets where he labeled Santa a communist.

continued...

 Donald J. Trump
@realDonaldTrump

Everyone thinks @SantaClaus is a generous guy but he's nothing but a communist!

RETWEETS 72,369 LIKES 209,583

 Donald J. Trump
@realDonaldTrump

Now I am President and if @SantaClaus doesn't shut down operations we will build a great wall across our northern border.

RETWEETS 72,369 LIKES 209,583

 Donald J. Trump
@realDonaldTrump

He gets off on free labor and tax exemptions. If anyone should get audited, it's him!

RETWEETS 72,369 LIKES 209,583

 Donald J. Trump
@realDonaldTrump

And the elves will pay for it!
#makeamericagreatagain

RETWEETS 72,369 LIKES 209,583

 Donald J. Trump
@realDonaldTrump

All the welfare freeloaders get bikes and sneakers for Christmas. All I get is coal! For DECADES!

RETWEETS 72,369 LIKES 209,583

At the rally, aides to Ted Cruze, Ben Sasse, and Jason Chaffetz admitted to similar feelings towards jolly old St. Nicholas. Chris Christie complained of the lumps of coal in his Christmas pudding.

One stated, "Clearly, this is a political hatchet job by an overtly partisan foreign agent intent on destroying our constitution." Governor Sarah Palin noted, "Santa has a long history of stalking and burglary. He has a comprehensive list of every child's actions, and it is estimated he violates millions of American homes every year." She went on to site his refusal to cooperate with DMVs across the country and his unlicensed sleigh.

Famed neurosurgeon, Dr. Ben Carson, highlighted another concern. "He is a known drug pusher. Children under his influence experience hallucinations of dancing sugar plum fairies. Mothers and fathers should be concerned about the negative influence Santa has on their children. These dancing fairies highlight the role drugs play in advancing the homosexual agenda."

The US Chamber of Commerce announced full support of Trump's actions, their official statement noting that Santa has not contributed to any CC sponsored super PACs, or supported anti-union legislation. The Chamber allowed that as such time as Santa actively endorses the legislative agenda of Americans for Prosperity, the Heritage Foundation, and the Platte Institute, they will reconsider his suspension. "Until that time," they said, "we are confident that large retailers like Walmart will produce appropriate gifts at prices of excellent profit margin."

Meanwhile, malls are encouraged to replace Santa with kiosks protesting Planned Parenthood. Letters to Santa should be replaced with contributions to support the Family Research Council, the Billy Graham Evangelist Association, and the 700 Club.

Pentagon officials refused to comment on the proposal of a northern wall. However, both the NRA and Minuteman militia officials expressed their enthusiasm. Governors in Nebraska, Texas, Utah, and Mississippi have initiated an open season for all reindeer during the month of December.

The President elect ended his speech with a final declaration: "Santa is not Patriotic. Nobody is as unamerican as he is."

Santa was unavailable for comment.

Reporters Barrie Marchant and Daphne Higbee are special correspondents of the Marchant/Higbee FoxNewsService with a focus on political factoids and innuendo.